Logging in to the administator panel

- Administration dashboard

Administration dashboard

If you nagivate to your website (e.g. https://www.yourwebsiteurl.com) and append '/admin' to the end of your url, you reach the admin login panel. This is the panel which you use to login to the backend of your webpage (see figure 1).

Figure 1

You can log into this administration panel, with the credentials you have been sent by mail or some other way. When you log in to the dashboard, you will see the following page (see figure 2)

Most if this, you won't have to do anything with. You can see some statistics about your website here, but it might not be accurete. The best statistics are collected through Google Analytics, if that was part of your package. Most interesting is the sidebar. It might be less filled for your account, depending on your role or the role your organization has given you.
